WHY SOME FARMERS VOTE DEMOCRATIC

Many farmers of this section who have voted the Republican ticket straight for years, are threatening to bolt the ticket this fall and vote the Democratic ticket, giving as their reason for doing so that the Republican party has sadly neglected the farmer who has been given the dirty end of many dirty deals ever since the war and that prosperity has missed the farmer.

The vetoing of the McNary-Haugen bill was a bitter blow and disappointment to the farmers. Inasmuch as the Republican party has failed in the estimation of these farmers to bring about any farm relief, they feel they are going to take a chance on voting the Democratic ticket in the hope that they will get the farm relief desired.

Quite a number of farmers around Frankfort and Bremen townships are taking this attitude.

Vote "Yes" On Will Co. Bond Issue Say Boosters

One of the most important public policy questions on the ballot in Will County is the bond issue for $1,750,000 for paving 53 miles of highways in the county.

Fred Francis, supervisor of New Lenox township and chairman of the bond issue committee states that the bond issue is the only way in which Will County can get her important highway gaps and hook ups completed; that the state is not in a position to do this paving as soon as the county will if the bond issue passes; that the tax rate is so small that it will not be a burden to the tax payer and in the event that the next legislature does pass a gas tax the money which will accrue to Will County from such tax can be used to retire the bonds and thus still more lessen the special taxation for the retiring of the bond issue bonds.

Mr. Francis points out that $200,000 will be allotted to Frankfort township to build 4 1/2 miles of paving, 3 1/2 miles on Wolf Road from the Cook and Will County line north of Mokena thru Mokena to the Lincoln highway and one mile in Frankfort from the Lincoln highway south thru Frankfort to the Sauk Trail road. A bridge which it is estimated will cost $65,000 is also to be built across Hickory Creek south of Mokena on Wolf Road. At 20 cents on each $100 assessed valuation the added tax for Frankfort would be small, Mr. Francis says.

Mr. Francis feels that in order for the proposition to go over big all factions should unite, get in the band wagon and boost for good roads. He feels confident that the city of Joliet and Joliet township will give the bond issue their wholehearted support and that it will receive a regular land slide of favorable votes in that section.

Mr. Francis says that his committee has made every effort to make the road program as comprehensive as possible for the amount of bonds which can be raised. He urges all good road boosters to vote yes on the proposition.

Mr. Kingerle of the Chicago Regional Planning Association has had charge of laying out the roads that appear on the bond issue map.

Charles Erickson, Herbert and Walter Cooper of Orland township, Cook county are very ardent boosters for the Will County bond issue and are active in getting as many votes for it in Will County as possible. They met in conference with Mr. Francis Monday night. Tuesday a meeting was held in Joliet at which plans for giving the proposition publicity and advertising were discussed and arrangements made to carry such plans into effect.

Mr. Francis advises that an intensive campaign is to be launched to acquaint the people of Will County with the merits of the measure; that speakers will be sent thruout the county in behalf of the bond issue and that considerable money will be spent in putting this measure over.

New Bakery Opens At Tinley

Tinley Park is going to have a new industry by way of a new bakery shop which in fact is the first bakery shop ever opened in Tinley Park. The new bakery will open on Saturday morning of this week and will be in charge of Messrs. Henry Gee and John A. Baufort, both of Chicago. The bakery is located in the Hollstein building formerly occupied by an A. & P. store.

Mr. Gee has had much experience in the baking business and is going to put out as fine a line of bakery goods as can be bought in big city bakeries. All goods will be fresh every day and bread will be baked fresh three times daily. Orders will be taken for bakery goods for all occasions. Among the specialties will be the good old fashioned German style "Kaffee Kuchen".

The new bakery will be called The Tinley Park Baker Shop. Deliveries will also be made to nearby towns. It is hoped that the new industry will be accorded a liberal and steady patronage as it will be to the benefit of Tinley Park to get and hold new enterprises.

Start Work on S. W. Highway at Orland

The long visioned Southwest Highway project which was the vision of Dr. W. R. Schuessler and others of Orland Park and vicinity, is now a reality. This week a big steam shovel is at work cutting down the hill north of Orland on the west side of the Wabash railroad for the new Southwest road way. The new route follows along the Wabash from Palos to Orland and will cross Keane Avenue on a viaduct northeast of Orland Park alongside of the Wabash bridge. The part of the Southwest that is being built into Orland to meet 143rd street is only a spur from the main line which has been surveyed to go thru the forest preserve north and west of Orland to the Will County line.

Concrete has been poured on the Southwest highway in the vicinity of Oak Lawn. Work is being pushed rapidly on the Orland Park end. A fleet of big motor trucks are now engaged in hauling material for fills and other roadbed work. When this highway is completed Orland will have five paved highways in and near it, namely 143rd street, Keane Avenue, Route 51, Wolf Road and the Southwest highway.

It is understood that 143rd street is to be widened to 40 feet to take care of the extra traffic that will be turned on it with the connection of the new Southwest highway.

Mokena Pastor Returns for The Fourth Year

The present pastor of the Mokena M. E. church, Rev. Glen T. Beaty was returned to this charge it was shown by the appointments read by Bishop Edwin H. Hughes at the Rock River Conference held at Morgan Park last week. Thus begins the 4th year of Mr. Beaty's pastorate in Mokena. Let us make it the best.

Next Sunday evening, Mr. Beaty will preach upon the theme: "The Modern Message from the Story of Adam and Eve". All people regardless of creed or belief will be welcomed at any and all of our services.

Rev. and Mrs. Beaty spent two days last week in Mokena. Their time was spent in planning the coming year's work, in calling and in general detail work. They were entertained in the home of Mrs. Rose Moriarty and were guests of several others. Their school at Garrett Biblical Institute started this week.

The evening service last Sunday evening was considerably shortened in order to allow the congregation to attend the Mission Festival service at St. John's church.

Rev. Mr. Beaty is to be the speaker at the assembly period in the Morgan Park Military Academy on next Monday Morning.

The Ladies Aid Society met this week with Mrs. Ella Cooper and Mrs. Nicholas Laufler as hostess in the home of the former. Final plans for the annual bazaar to be held the afternoon and evening of October 25th were discussed.

Garage Burns When Torch Blows Up

Explosion of a blow torch caused a fire in a garage on the N. F. Heiman place northeast of Mokena Saturday afternoon. Mr. Heiman had lit the blow torch preparatory to soldering a radio aerial wire. He had just set the torch on the garage floor and stepped out in the yard to get something when the torch exploded hurling the blazing gasoline all over the interior of the building which quickly burst into a mass of flames. The fire siren was sounded in Mokena and in a short time a large force of volunteer fire fighters were on hand. The village fire hose was attached to a fire plug near the school house and a long lead of hose was run to the Heiman place, but the building was nearly burned to the ground before any water from the hose could be brought to play on it.

A few tires, tubes, some tools and a number of other articles were burned. The loss is covered by insurance.

During the fire a number of unthinking autoists ran their cars over the hose. Later a closer watch was kept and other cars were detoured over another street to avoid the hose. In the cities driving over a fire hose means a stiff fine and this should apply to smaller towns as well. Driving over a hose is liable to break the fabric and ruins the hose.

This fire demonstrated the need of a chemical fire truck.

TRUCK THIEF CAUGHT AFTER WILD RIDE

Thomas Frazelle, who claims Chicago as his place of residence, figured in an exciting chase last Friday night when he stole a new truck belonging to the Powers-Thompson Construction Company of Joliet and was captured after a running revolver battle north of Tinley Park by Motor Cycle Policeman George Smith of Tinley Park.

According to the story as told by officer Smith, Frazelle had been working for the Thompson Powers Company on Route 51 and drew his pay check Friday. He got under the influence of liquor and then set out to be a big bold robber. Another employee of the Thompson-Powers Company driving a new ton and a half truck pulled up at the Larson garage at the four corners north of Frankfort. He went to light some torches along the new pavement at this point. Soon as he was off the truck, Frazelle is said to have taken possession and started driving away on the Lincoln Highway heading eastward.

When the truck driver saw what happened he rushed to the Larson garage and asked Mr. Larson to take him in a car in chase after the stolen truck. The garage wrecking car was brought into use and armed with a revolver and shot gun the truck driver and Mr. Larson set out after the stolen truck.

When Frazelle reached the county line east of Frankfort he turned off on the gravel road toward Tinley Park. As he turned the corner off the Lincoln highway the truck driver fired at the truck and shot away one of the rear tires but Frazelle kept on going. In the meantime Officer Smith at Tinley Park was notified to look out for the stolen truck. Frazelle drove down 183rd street to Ridgeland, thru Tinley Park and headed north. Officer Smith gave chase on his motorcycle and at the Bert Fulton corner north of Tinley he shot away another tire on the truck. Frazelle still kept on going. In the meantime a bearing burned out on the officer's motorcycle so he had to ditch it and then rode with Mr. Larson who was still in pursuit. Officer Smith fired into the cab several times, one bullet just missing Frazelle and shattered the windshield. The latter was finally caught at 159th street. At first he put up a fight, but Officer Smith took the fight out of him after giving him a couple of good hooks on the jaw. Frazelle was arrested and lodged in the Tinley Park jail until Saturday when Sheriff Margraff of Will County, came and took him to the county jail in Joliet on a warrant sworn out by the Thompson Powers Company.

State Architect Lindstrom has received bids for the following improvements at state institutions: A new ward and alterations to the power house at the Lincoln state school and colony. Alterations to the cold storage plant and power house at Joliet penitentiary. Construction of a new occupational therapy building and alterations to the laundry at the Kankakee state hospital. The contracts will be awarded in a few days, it was announced.

R. B. Miller, chief forester of the state department, recently attended a meeting of the National Association of State Foresters at Wooster, Ohio. In connection with the association meeting, the state foresters made trips over parts of Ohio, visiting places of interest to forestry. The conditions in southern Ohio are similar to those in southern Illinois, and the state forester believes that he obtained many valuable suggestions on this trip in regard to the management of state forests, fire protection, and the growing and planting of forest tree seedlings, as well as from an examination of experimental plantations, in which Ohio has been a leader for some years. Planting on land stripped by coal companies has also received some attention in the state of Ohio, black locust being one of the species which has been successful.

Bids for the construction of 100 miles of hard roads, together with grading and bridge sections were received a few days ago by the state division of highways. In the bids were proposals for the construction of two forty-foot stretches on route 49 in Cook county. Bids were received also for road sections between Jacksonville and Chapin, Morgan county, and Tovey and route 24 north of Taylorville. Grading bids for work near Tovey were also received.

What promises to be one of the busiest sessions of the State Supreme court in recent years is now in session in Springfield. The docket is a heavy one and many important cases are pending on the advisement docket, in which decisions are expected when the term ends. Six justices will sit during the term, the vacancy being caused by the resignation of Floyd E. Thompson, Democratic nominee for governor. Chief Justice Frederic R. De Young will preside. A number of cases of statewide importance will be considered; among them the reapportionment case of John B. Fergus is one of the more important. Fergus sought permission to file an injunction proceeding against state officials to restrain them from paying the salaries of members of the next general assembly on the ground that they had failed to make a new senatorial apportionment. Judge Norman L. Jones denied the motion and the case was appealed to the Supreme court.

Guessing at the temperature of cream samples being tested to determine butterfat content, scales that fail to tell the truth containing weights, kerosene and other odorous commodities stored in cream buying stations, and other objectionable conditions, are reported in a series of hearings conducted recently in the office of the director of agriculture, Stillman J. Stanard, by Walter R. Rimzey, superintendent of the foods and dairies division, and his assistant, Col. C. C. Miner. Considering the fact that cream stations are in operation at almost every cross road hamlet throughout Illinois, the number of reported violations is not considered as excessive by the inspection officials. Every effort is put forth to prevent violations, and instructive circulars are forwarded to creamery concerns, and through them to the station operators, to encourage proper tests.

Sixteen cities in Illinois now have a population of over 30,000. The present populations of these cities estimated July 1 by the U. S. census bureau are as follows: Aurora, 47,100; Chicago, 3,157,000; Cicero, 71,600; Danville, 38,800; Decatur, 57,100; East St. Louis, 74,000; Elgin, 36,000; Evanston, 47,600; Joliet, 41,900; Moline, 35,600; Oak Park Village, 57,700; Peoria, 84,500; Quincy, 39,800; Rock Island, 42,700; Rockford, 82,800; Springfield, 67,200.

The state of Illinois has purchased one thousand acres of farm land at Menteno, Kankakee county, as the site for a new hospital for the insane to relieve the crowded condition in insane hospitals. The greater part of the land was purchased for $200 an acre while some cost $240. The proposed new hospital will be of sufficient size to accommodate one thousand patients.

State fruit inspection forces serving in the Calhoun county apple movement report that three additional packing plants are operating this season. Increased attention to the standard apple grades promulgated by the Illinois department of agriculture and a greater tendency toward the use of smaller containers, properly graded and packed, is also evident in the banner apple county. Early in the season, representatives toured Calhoun county and conducted fruit grading, packing and marketing demonstrations.

Bids for the construction of bridges and pavement and for grading sections were awarded a few days ago by the state division of highways.

Included in the contract for grading was route 78, section 147-A, Cass and Morgan counties. The work will be done by Feiner & Luick, St. Louis, for $74,748.15.

Other contracts awarded, were:

Women of Illinois were allowed to keep inviolate their age when they registered at the polls a few days ago. They can continue to do so in the future according to Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom. Mr. Carlstrom gave the opinion to Judge Oramel B. Irwin, who asked for a construction of amendments to the election commission law, regarding ages of voters. The attorney general in his response dissipated the fear of women that they would be required to tell their ages in declaring the exact number of years they have lived in the United States. "It is my opinion that the statement of an applicant for registration to the effect that he or she has been a resident of the United States for 21 years or over would be sufficient response to the question," the attorney general holds.

"The True Story of 'Twenty Million Dollars,'" published by the Illinois Conservation and Food Control association, contains a complete table of costs of retiring the principal and paying interest on the proposed twenty-million-dollar bond issue as well as carrying on the work of the department of conservation entirely out of license fees without one cent of direct property or personal tax. In preparing this table, according to Charles F. Mansfield, Jr., secretary of the association, the average normal yearly increase in the sale of licenses was reduced approximately 25 per cent. An allowance was made for a 40 per cent increase in the operating expenses of the department of conservation during the next ten years.

Inspectors of the state department of conservation have reported to their director, Gus H. Radebaugh, that the present duck-hunting season promises to be the best Illinois sportsmen have had in the last 25 years. Great increases noted in the number of game birds is believed due in part to the greater protection offered the fowl by the department of conservation. Indication that sportsmen of Illinois have fallen in with the ideal of the department—strict compliance with game regulations, to insure wild life propagation to the ultimate benefit of both hunter and game—is also seen by Mr. Radebaugh in the reports on licenses sold for the current season. According to the reports reaching the capital city, a record-breaking number of hunters are in the field.

Bids for the construction of a monument to the memory of John A. Logan, at Murphysboro, were received a few days ago by William J. Lindstrom, state architect. The memorial which will cost more than $15,000 was provided for in a bill passed at the last session of the general assembly. The monument will be to the memory of General Logan, "America's first volunteer soldier," his first wife, Mary, and all volunteer soldiers of the United States. Bids have also been received for improvements to be made at the state institutions as follows: Former service men's wards and other improvements at the Elgin state hospital; additions and alterations to the hospitals and cottage at the school for girls at Geneva.

An explosion a few days ago resulted in severe injury to Dr. M. J. Prucha, professor of dairy bacteriology at the University of Illinois and the partial destruction of a laboratory bus owned by the state department of public health, according to word received at the office of Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director. The explosion was caused by a defective acetylene tank. The laboratory was a specially built bus outfitted for use in the sanitary supervision of milk supplies in Illinois. Floyd M. Keller and Donald R. Williams, the two health department sanitarians in charge of the bus, were not in the laboratory at the time of the explosion and escaped injury.

Gen. Herbert M. Lord, who had charge of the entire financing of the United States army during the World war and who is now director of the bureau of budget, United States government, will be the speaker at the annual banquet of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce to be held at the Congress hotel, Chicago, on the evening of October 18. The annual meeting of the state chamber will be held on October 18 and 19 this year. General Lord, takes as his subject, "The Nation's Business."

Grain Crops Matured Under Electric Light

In the plant laboratories at the University of Minnesota experiments have been made to prove that grain crops can be brought to maturity under artificial illumination. Electricity was the artificial light used to supplant sun light in the growth, ripening and germinating of the seeds of wheat, barley, oats, rye, lettuce, peas, beans, radishes and other plants, says the Washington Star.

The experiments were conducted in unheated basement rooms of the college. Tungsten filament nitrogen lamps burning twenty-four hours a day were used. Spring wheats were made to produce ripe seeds in ninety days of continued lighting in this first test of the sort where electricity replaced sun light.

The experts of the university believe that under this artificial method plant breeders may be able to produce three generations of seed in a year.

Entertain on Trains

Patrons of a Paris subway line are enjoying picture shows as the trains speed through the tubes. Four magic lanterns have been installed in each car, two on each side, and the views are projected on the dark walls of the subway. Advertisements, pictures of celebrities and other features are shown. The lanterns operate automatically, and the show begins as soon as a train leaves the station.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Can your farm answer "YES" to these FIVE vital questions

FIVE SIMPLE QUESTIONS

Yet, if every farmer could answer "Yes" to them all, the farm debt would be no menace.

READ Senator Arthur Cappers' PLAN to wipe out the FARM DEBT

How many questions can you answer "Yes"? All of them? Good! The farm debt need not worry you—for if every farmer in the country could answer "yes" our farm debt would be no problem.

In the answer to the last question lies the solution of the farmers' problem according to Senator Arthur Capper.

He says, "I see no way of eliminating, reducing or stemming the income of the farm mortgage debt except through life insurance. If every farmer would carry a (life insurance) policy to the extent of his indebtedness the present farm mortgage debt would be eliminated in a generation..."

His idea is sound, workable and economical. The Illinois Life Insurance Company has a plan by

- 1 Is the mortgage less than 35% of the value of the farm?
Yes ☐ No ☐
- 2 Has any substantial amount of the mortgage been paid off in the last five years?
Yes ☐ No ☐
- 3 If you live will your farm clear itself of debt in the next ten years?
Yes ☐ No ☐
- 4 Could your heirs raise enough cash to quickly clear the farm?
Yes ☐ No ☐
- 5 Is life insurance carried to the full amount of the mortgage?
Yes ☐ No ☐

which you and every farmer can eliminate his debt without burdensome cost. If you live, the Illinois Life Plan will clear your farm when the policy matures. If you die, the farm is cleared immediately. The payments are small. The insurance payments may be divided over a period of years. Anyone can afford it. No one in debt should be without it.

Stop worrying over your debt. Cease wondering whether your family or the sheriff will settle your estate. Know that what you have labored for will go to your loved ones if you die—or be yours clear and free—if you live.

Get this simple, easy plan now. It costs only 2c to investigate. There is no obligation. The coupon under your hand will bring you full information. Mail it.

HOOVERETTIES
by ANNA STEESE RICHARDSON

THE most surprising feature of the Hoover-Curtis campaign is the type of men and women who have been drawn into the political work by personal devotion to the standard bearer, Herbert Hoover.

Men and women who have never participated actively in politics are coming to National Headquarters in Washington, offering to serve in the humblest capacities. Women, whose closest contact with Mr. Hoover during the war was the wearing of Hoover aprons and carrying out his food conservation plans, are giving up their vacations and sitting behind desks in the mid-summer heat, doing routine tasks.

Sometimes I study these people and wonder, "What is the hold which Mr. Hoover has on any man or woman who has ever worked with him?" The other day I met a man who I knew must have left an important post to his subordinates. I learned that he was spending four days of each week in Washington and three in New York, often working in his home office on Sunday to tie up loose ends. And in Washington he is working unobtrusively, without title, without any particular credit.

Quite frankly I asked him why. He replied with equal frankness: "I don't know that you will understand, but it is this way. When the United States jumped into the World War, I was caught in London, milling around with what seemed to be a million other Americans. My letter of credit was of no earthly use to me. Some one told me that the only man who could help me to get passage home was a chap named Herbert Hoover. I went to see him. A quiet, efficient looking fellow who listened in silence while you presented your case. Usually he cut right through red tape. But not for me.

"Think you ought to go home?" he asked.

"Sure. My firm's got the chance to do a smashing business. I can take them some first hand information. I ought to get something big out of it."

"For a few seconds he made no comment, then—

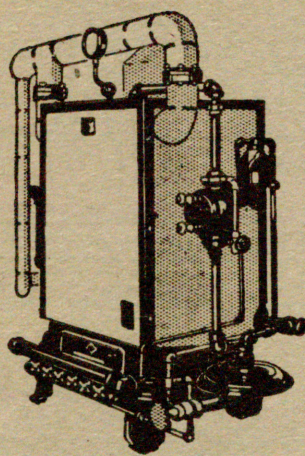

"Couldn't you make up your mind to stay here? We're going to need men like you. You're strong and you seem to have no family responsibilities. Your firm has other men on the ground. Here there are bigger things for you to do. Service you will never forget or regret. Belgian relief. Human lives to be saved. Bigger than dollars."

"I worked with Hoover in Belgium and on the Food Administration. That was over ten years ago, but it did something for me. I don't say I owe my present business success to that experience, though working with Mr. Hoover was a liberal education, but it certainly injected the human element into my business relations. Made my whole life richer."

"So I am back, working for Hoover because he will make the best and most human president we have had since Abraham Lincoln."

CHICAGO CIVIC FEDERATION REPUDIATES STATEMENTS OF BOOSTERS OF STATE BOND ISSUE

The following answer to mis-statements from proponents of the $20,000,000 bond issue is authorized by the Executive Committee of the Civic Federation of Chicago:

Repeating its persistent mis-statement that "the entire cost" of the proposed $20,000,000 hunting grounds project "will be borne by sportsmen through their hunting and fishing license fees without one cent of direct tax", when it cannot fail to increase taxes, the Illinois "Conservation and Flood Control Association" (campaign mouthpiece for the "Federated Sportsmen of Illinois") has just published a "smoke-dream" pamphlet calculated to lull the voters' suspicions, secure approval for the bonds, and provide larger fields for "rabbit shepherds."

To "sustain" their "no-direct-tax misrepresentation, they present a large table, the basis for which is absurd and dishonest. In the face of figures from State Auditor Nelson showing the Game and Fish Division operating expenditures for years ended June 30, 1925 to 1928, to have been respectively $353,111, $439,016, $445,143 and $498,795, they have the effrontery to use only $350,000 (nearly $150,000 less than for 1928) as the probable operating costs for 1928. They allow only $10,000 as the probable annual increase in costs (no increase estimated after 1938) instead of $53,000, the actual increase for 1928 over 1927, or $47,666 the average annual increase in the past four years. And yet they propose to stock, patrol and maintain thousands of additional State-owned acres.

On the license revenue side they put forth $520,000 as probable receipts for 1929. Actual license receipts for the past fiscal year were only $481,480. Average annual increase in fee revenues since 1925 has been only $17,070, which at most would warrant an estimate of only $498,550 for 1929. The excess of operating costs over fee revenues for the past year was $17,313, and if the experience of the past four years is continued, the operating deficiency for 1932 to be made up out of direct taxes, alone will be $149,899, with no provision for bond charges, or larger acreage.

Besides presenting unwarranted figures, the "boosters" table makes startling disclosures of their real plans, as follows:

1. Instead of paying the entire bond costs themselves, these self-styled sportsmen, (who by no means are the real sportsmen of Illinois) plan not to increase license fees at all until 1935 and, not to double the present $1 fee until 1949.

2. Only $2,000,000 in bonds are to be issued annually for ten years. (This proves the bonds unnecessary. The Legislature might better appropriate annually for ten years what is needed for real conservation, and save millions in interest.)

3. No bonds will be retired until 1935 and the heaviest retirements will fall between 1951 and 1967, so that the total interest charge will be $16,896,000 nearly as much as the amount to be spent for land, instead of $12,400,000—the interest on a normal basis of retirement. (From this "after-us-the-deluge" policy, doubtless, the association has derived the "flood control" part of its name).

This so-called "flood control association" has not an engineer on its board. Competent engineers have declared that the pending act will not aid flood control. Conservationists have stated that it would set aside a well-considered plan for a system of State parks distributed throughout the State. The Bond Issue is a fraud and should be beaten.

DON'T QUIT!

When things go wrong, as they sometimes will,
When the road you're trudging seems all up hill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile, but you have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit,
Rest, if you must—but don't quit.
Life is queer with its twists and turns,
As every one of us sometimes learns
And many a "Failure" turns about
When he might have won had he stuck it out;
Don't give up, though the pace seems slow,
You may succeed with another blow.
Often the goal is nearer than
It seems to a faint and faltering man,
Often the struggler has given up
When he might have captured the victor's cup,
And he learned too late, when the night slipped down,
How close he was to the golden crown.
Success is Failure turned inside out—
The silver tint of the cloud of doubt,
And you can never tell how close you are,
It may be near when it seems afar;
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit—
It's when things seem worst that—you mustn't quit.

OLD FOLKS SAY DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Small Wonder Hubby

Didn't Place Author

Willerton, whose life is given to the study of books, has a wife who never reads at all. She does, however, take down a volume from time to time in order to show some sympathetic interest in her husband's pursuits. This is what happened the other day.

"I took down a book this morning by an author named Voliv," she said. "Is he considered a good writer?"

"Voliv, my dear?" repeated the husband, in perplexity. "Voliv?"

While he was puzzling over the name, his wife thought of something else and went away to attend to it. Then he stole to her room to see what book she had on hand, and found a volume of Browning's poetry. It had been bound with no name on the back, and simply bore the legend "Vol. IV."—Kansas City Star.

The Count

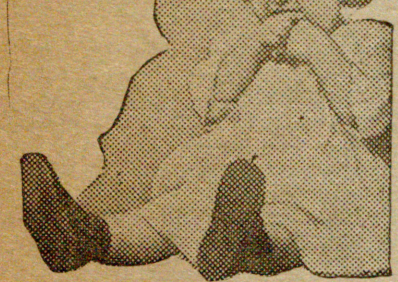

Lemuel Bolles, former national commander of the American Legion, told a New York reporter a story of his return from Paris.

"A surgeon," he said, "was giving us some of his war reminiscences at a Paris banquet. He had cut off a soldier's arm, he said, and afterwards he certified that the man was unfit for any more fighting. Back came the question from headquarters—why was the man unfit? The surgeon replied that it was because he had only one arm. Back came the answer again: 'How do you know he only has one arm?'"

"The surgeon replied: 'I counted it.'"

It is vain to trust in wrong.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

JERSEY NOW IN HIGH FAVOR; QUAINT CHALLIS IS REVIVED

Typical Jersey Costume for Fall.

AFTER dining and dancing in fluttery billowy tulle, and gorgeously bejeweled satins and velvets and like costumes of state, what a relief to turn from the formality of the festive raiment of the evening to the smartly simple sports clothes which gladden the daytime hour.

Not only are sports frocks eminently practical but when it comes to "style," well, the word is written all over this season's models, especially of Jersey, for Jersey is certainly outdoing any previous record in point of popularity.

When one thinks of Jersey nowadays one has to entirely reconstruct one's ideas from those of bygone days, for Jersey in the now and the then bears little semblance. The new Jersey is that light weight one does not mind wearing it the year round. Then, too, there is such a vast diversity in patterning, coloring and knitted stitch as interpreted by modern Jersey.

As was to be expected, the printed vogue has invaded the Jersey realm, which means new triumphs for Jersey in the autumn mode. One can buy the most fascinating Jersey fabrics this season at the counter, either printed or metal-interknitted, or that which looks like tweed and scores of other equally as intriguing types. Or one can find them made up in ensembles and suits and frocks in bewildering array.

It seems that designers consider that Jersey is presented at its best when it is made up in combination of print with plain or a dark color with a lighter shade of the same color. Each, by way of contrast, contrives to emphasize the charm of the other. Which accounts for the presence of scores of chic costumes which stress the compose of contrasting Jersey.

A typical Jersey costume for fall is here pictured. The skirt is of jungle green Jersey and it is plaited, which gives it a very interesting treatment. The pullover and cardigan of Jersey in a lighter green are trimmed with bands of the dark green. A three-cornered scarf of silk completes the costume.

In the realm of dress fabrics, lightweight woollens are conspicuously in the foreground. Following the example set by sheer velvets, a large percentage of the wool fabrics is taking to prints.

It makes it still more interesting that there is a sheerness, transparency and pretty fluttering suppleness about these smart new woollens comparable to that of the daintiest silks, chiffons and other as equally esthetic weaves.

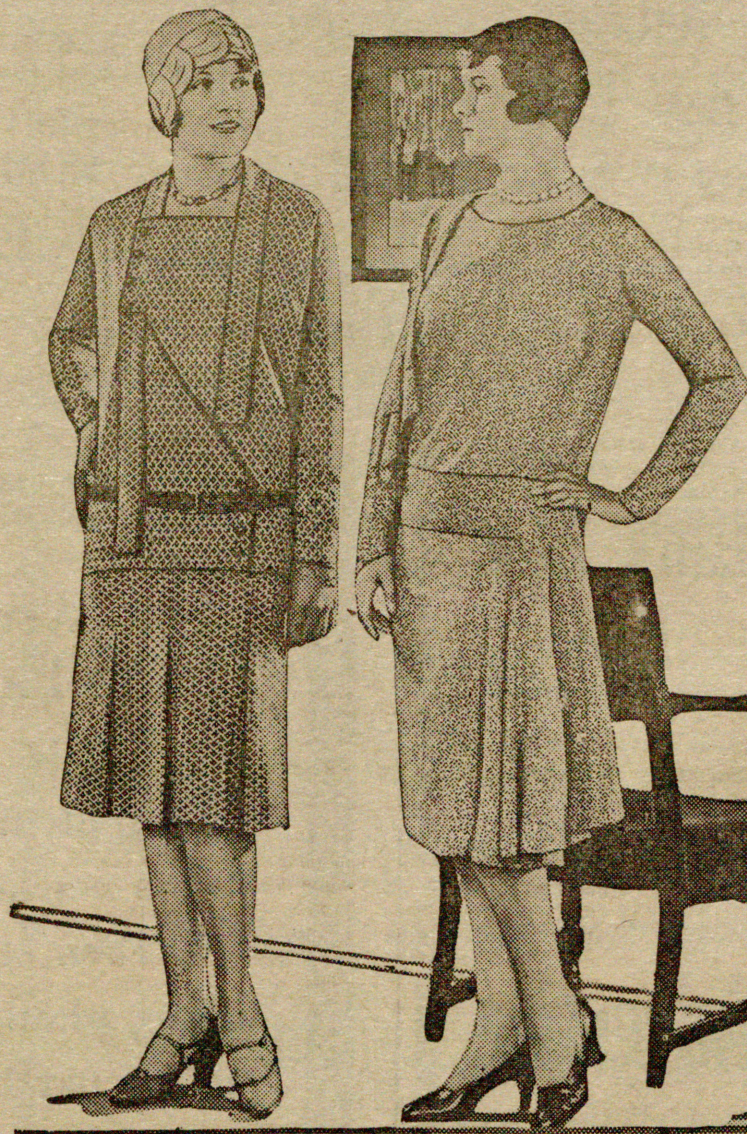

There is, for instance, a sheer wool crepe called georgeanna which comes in all the modish colors of the season. This is given the same soft styling as one would give a delicate georgette or silk crepe. That is, it is plaited, shirred and draped with jabots featured in profusion.

For two-piece sports models the new kasha-like printed woollens are quite le dernier cri, while the thinner challis and other sheer woollens are being much exploited for the informal frock of the one-piece variety. There is a touch of romance in the thought that the present vogue for printed woollens should have resulted in that old-time favorite, challis, coming into its own again.

In the picture two types of printed woolen informal daytime frocks are shown. Each is made of challis. The one to the right is a one-piece frock of challis printed in a floral design of soft colors on a cream ground. This frock has rather a wide belt effect, a scarf or jabot at the right side of the bodice, and fullness giving the effect of a drape at the left side of the skirt. A step-in pump of black glaze kid, collared and heeled with reptile, is worn with this costume. The kid pump, by the way, has become so great a favorite in shoe styles that it is taking unto itself many versions, chief among which is the step-in.

The challis of which the frock to the right is styled, is patterned in a geometrical design in red, white and blue, softly toned to a pleasing degree. The pipings, belt and buttons are red. The feeling for gay color is more pronounced than ever this season, and this lovely challis gives emphasis to the trend for gay hues worked to gether in effective blends and contrasts. The shoes are a one-strap model in taupe kid, which is a color somewhat the tone of natural blue fox fur. The felt hat matches the shoes in color. The hose are a shade lighter than the shoes. A vogue is developing for colored kid shoes either matching the dress or relating themselves in some way to the general effect.

Lesson for October 14

SPIRITUAL GIFTS

LESSON TEXT—I Cor. 12:3-7, 31;

13:1-8. GOLDEN TEXT—Now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Love Is the Best of All.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Greatest Thing in the World.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Greatest of All Gifts.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Spiritual Gifts.

Joel predicted a remarkable effusion of the spirit in Messianic times (Joel 2:28, 29; cf. Acts 2:17, 18).

Before the crucifixion, Jesus promised to send the Holy Spirit to be the helper and guide of His people. This was historically fulfilled on the day of Pentecost. The gifts of the Spirit were extended to all classes. Not only were these endowments marked by great profusion, but by great diversity. In the exercise of these gifts confusion would surely arise. Divine life, suddenly poured into human nature, stirred it to unusual power. In view of the abuses and confusion which are likely to arise from such a condition, it is highly important that certain principles be set forth for guidance and regulation.

I. The Infallible Criterion (I Cor. 12:3).

The infallible test which determines whether gifts are spurious or genuine is one's conception of and attitude toward Jesus Christ. Only those who recognize Him as God manifest in the flesh, His vicarious atonement on the cross, and submit to Him as their Lord, can be recognized as possessing the gift of the Holy Spirit. Christ said before leaving the earth that when the Spirit came His supreme business would be to testify of Him, to take the things of Christ and show them unto the people. The soundness of the faith of a man is the sign of this commission from God.

II. The Diversity of Spiritual Gifts (I Cor. 12:4-11).

In the church there are to be found those possessing the gift of wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment of spirits, divers kinds of tongues and the interpretation of tongues.

III. The Unity of the Spirit's Gifts (I Cor. 12:12-30).

Christian unity is only possible when effected by the one Holy Spirit. This unity amidst diversity is represented under the figure of the human body.

1. The human body has many members, each performing distinct functions for the good of the body (v. 12).

2. The members are mutually related and independent (vv. 13-17).

3. The place of each member is determined by the choice of God (v. 18).

4. The members which are least attractive and least conspicuous are most important (vv. 21-23).

IV. Love, the Spirit's Best Gift (I Cor. 12:31-13).

1. The pre-eminence of love (vv. 1-3).

It transcends.

(1) Speaking with tongues.

(2) The gift of prophecy.

(3) Faith of the most vigorous kind.

(4) Philanthropy of the most generous sort.

(5) Heroic devotion leading to martyrdom.

2. The attributes of love (vv. 4-7).

(1) Long-suffering and kind.

(2) Free from envy.

(3) Freedom from boasting.

(4) Decorous and well behaved.

(5) Unselfish.

(6) Does not give way to passion; is not quick tempered.

(7) Thinks no evil; does not impute evil motives to others; is not suspicious.

(8) Delights not in evil.

(9) Beareth all things.

(10) Is trustful, hopeful and firm.

3. The permanence of love (vv. 8-13).

Prophecy as prediction will be fulfilled. Prophecy as teaching will be brought to an end in the day when teaching is not needed. Tongues shall cease, for as the languages of earth were caused by God's judgment for sin, so shall Christ's redemption bring the nations back to one tongue. Knowledge shall be done away with the coming of a wider and nobler intelligence. The twilight will be lost in day, childhood, in maturity. Love will always abide, for God is love.

5. The comparative value of prophecy and tongues (14:1-25).

Prophecy is given the highest place because it is to declare God's message to men. Its primary meaning is to forthtell. To speak with tongues means to speak in other languages for the purpose of showing the presence of God.

One Who Never Forgets

Others may forget us in their prayers; there is One in heaven who never does forget. Others may fail us when their lamp burns low; He ever liveth. We are engirdled by the prayers of One who loves us and has the ear of God and therefore is able to save to the uttermost.—George H. Morrison.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

A spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

Any drug store has the genuine, prescription product.

Hard and Gnarled

Bishop Bristol said at a dinner in Washington:

"Old age mellows some of us, while others it makes hard and gnarled."

"Jethro, an aged woman said to her aged husband, 'we've lived together nearly fifty years now. Heigho, it can't last forever. It won't be long before one of us will have to go.'"

"Don't worry, Hannah," the old man soothed her. "Don't worry, my dear."

"No," she said, "but I was just thinkin', Jethro, that when it does happen I'd kinder like to live in Miami."

Thinking is but discovering the relations between things.

THE RETURN of ANTHONY TRENT

By WYNDHAM MARTYN

WNU Service

CHAPTER XIV—Continued

"It's worth a half-million dollars today," Trent went on. "There are many bigger stones worth half that, but none has the blue-white flame of this. It is too famous a diamond to try to sell. You know that as well as I." His voice sank. "There's an old diamond-cutter who has done work for me at Zwanenburger street in Amsterdam. He would cut it in half for a price and forget all about it. If he did that no expert dare swear that he knew the stone. We ought to realize at least a hundred thousand apiece for each half. Think what that would mean to us. I could loaf about the world comfortably and you could go somewhere and find peace and freedom from the strain you are enduring now. What about it?"

She rose to her feet, her face colorless.

"You have been so good to me," she said quietly, "that I have come to think of you as the best man I have ever known, the most gentle and chivalrous. Perhaps because I so much wished to believe it, I thought you had in reality put your old life behind you as sincerely as I have done. And, too, I thought you believed in me."

"I do," he said.

She shook her head.

"No. If you had you could never have offered me that." She pointed to the scintillant temptation. "You have shown me I did not know you and that you thought me a hypocrite."

She realized that this was the most bitter moment of her life. Not until now had the consciousness of her love for Anthony Trent forced itself so strongly upon her. She had admired him at first for his skill and audacity, for the insolent coolness with which he had worked alone and laughed at authority. Then she had come to see the finer side of his complex character, the generosity which distinguished him and the absence of pettiness. These characteristics she saw now she had idealized until she had reared upon their structure an Anthony Trent who did not exist. The leopard had not changed its spots.

"You mean you won't use any of the money I can realize for you on this stone? Think well before you answer."

"My mind was made up long ago. I need no time for consideration."

"Well," he said, after a pause, "if so, what will you do?"

"That I cannot say yet, definitely. Mrs. Kinney thinks she can get me work. I have some skill in fine sewing and the mending of old lace; it was taught me at my convent."

"How long will your eyes stand that strain?" he demanded. "The idea is ludicrous. You propose to pass the rest of your life as a working woman because of this silly prejudice. I can get you something better than sewing."

"Already I am too much in your debt to accept more."

Gone was the pleasant intimacy of a few minutes earlier. He could see almost a horror in her face. She regarded him as one who had seen the light for a little while and then, at adversity's first breath, gone back to the old and easier ways.

"Don't look at me like that," he said, "try to forget what I said."

She shook her head. "That would be impossible."

She could not understand how in a moment such as this he could regard her with a whimsical smile. Had he no intuition to warn him that his defection had wounded her irretrievably? That he should think her repentance only a matter of words showed her how ill she had judged him.

"If you have made up your mind," he said, "I suppose there is no more to be said."

"Nothing," she answered. "I cannot repay you for all you have done for me. I am afraid I shall never be able to do that. I am leaving here today. Good-by, Mr. Trent."

"Not tonight," he said earnestly, "please do me one favor. I am leaving town tonight and shall be back till Friday. Wait till then."

"I prefer to go tonight."

"If you won't do it as a favor I must put it in another way. I'm afraid it will sound rather brutal. Mademoiselle Dupin, you are under certain obligations to me. Apparently they weigh rather heavily on your mind. You can repay me by remaining here until I return. At the outside it will be forty-eight hours. It is not much to ask, is it?"

"Very well," she answered, reluctantly. "I will wait forty-eight hours." She did not understand how he could still smile at her. What a nature of contradictions was his!

"One question before I go. You have told me several times that the federal authorities were still seeking you. Why particularly should they want you?" He held up the Nizam's diamond. "Because of this?"

"Yes," she answered. "Particularly because of that."

"But why?" he asked.

"Because your government was greatly embarrassed by its loss. You do not know that before the United States went into the war a certain illustrious royal personage who is, oddly enough, very popular here, made a secret visit in a battleship in order to hasten this country's entrance into the war. He was here as a secret guest of the government. Absolute secrecy was preserved. Only once did he leave his fast cruiser and come by night to meet official Washington. Yet that night the Nizam's diamond which he carried as his bringer of fortune, his talisman, his good luck stone, was stolen. His own government thought it unwise to allow it to be known he was here and your own dare not advertise the loss. Now do you understand what a satisfaction it would be to catch the woman who took it?"

Evidently the memory of the affair was unpleasant.

"You will excuse me," she said, and ignored his outstretched hand. Her refusal to take it was not crudely done. Except that he divined her purpose he might have seen in the incident merely an oversight.

"Why don't you give me your hand?" he asked. "If any two people in this troubled world ought to be friends they are you and I."

"In the life I have chosen there will not be room for friendships like that. I shall work to forget."

"And I'm to be one of the forgot-

"I Shall Work to Forget."

ten. Somehow you give me the impression that I've disappointed you." "Disappointed!" she cried, her hands pressed against her heart, "if that were only the word."

Quickly she went from the room. Trent looked after her and he was still smiling.

"She wouldn't shake hands," he murmured as he walked down the stairway.

Mrs. Kinney came to the side of the woman whose sobbing distressed her immeasurably. She had grown to experience sincere affection for this mysterious and lovely visitor.

"What is it, my poor dear?" she whispered.

"I did not know one's heart could break twice," Mademoiselle Dupin cried wildly.

For a long while the shrewd housekeeper had watched her visitor's increasing interest in Anthony Trent. Of her employer's attitude Mrs. Kinney was in no doubt whatever. She supposed there had been some dreadful quarrel which seemed tragic now but which would pass over as other storms end.

"It will be all right," she said, comforting her.

"Never, never in this life!" sobbed Mademoiselle Dupin.

Trent's destination was Washington and his mission to see a cabinet official.

Keys of Early Times Not Easy to Handle

The possessive and acquisitive instincts in man, which seem to develop early and to die hard even among the most advanced of nations, writes Louise Gordon-Stables in the London Daily Telegraph, must have produced in quite primitive stages of human evolution some form of lock for the safeguarding of valuables, and capable of being negotiated only by its owner. In several passages in the Old Testament we come across references to such contrivances, as, for instance, in the Song of Solomon, where we read, "My hands dropped with myrrh and my fingers with sweet-smelling myrrh upon the handles of the lock." And that the key proper to the Oriental lock was of great size and considerable weight is borne out by the lines: "And the keys of the House of David will I lay upon my shoulder." For these keys, fashioned of wood and studded at one end with iron pegs to correspond with holes in the wooden lock, might, in the case of the door of wide influence who had formerly been ambassador to the Court of St. James. Anthony Trent had met him in London under circumstances so far out of the ordinary that he did not think he would have difficulty in recalling himself to Mr. Hill.

Cabinet officers are not easy of access. From his room at the New Willard Trent sought to speak to him over the telephone. This proved to be impossible. The cabinet officer was protected from telephonic assaults by a private secretary whose manners were too brusque to suit Anthony Trent.

The secretary after learning that Trent would not tell him why he desired to see Mr. Hill said it was idle to continue the conversation.

Half an hour later Trent came face to face with the secretary. He found him a big, overbearing youth who was holding his position during the recovery from an automobile accident of the real incumbent of the situation.

"I can't ask Mr. Hill to see you unless I know what it's about," he said bluntly.

"It is private business," Trent returned. "I cannot discuss it with you."

"Then you won't discuss it with the chief," said the other.

"I came from New York to see Mr. Hill and I'm going to see him. Also, I am not going to satisfy your curiosity."

"He's dated ahead for three days," Trent looked about him. He was in an ante-room with a big davenport and some comfortable chairs.

"I shall pass the time agreeably enough," he said. "I have slept on the hard ground, and that davenport is luxury."

"You can't sleep here," the secretary cried. "I shan't allow it."

"I'm afraid you take yourself too seriously," said Trent lighting a cigarette.

The secretary knew that in less than an hour Mr. Hill would pass through the ante-room. In that case the victory would go to Trent.

"We'll see you tomorrow afternoon," he said. "At four."

"We?" Trent retorted. "I'm afraid I must deny myself the pleasure of your presence at the interview. I'll remain here until four tomorrow." He had a shrewd idea that Mr. Hill must pass along sooner or later.

"Give me your card," said the secretary scowling.

In two minutes he returned.

"Three-thirty tomorrow," he said crossly. "The chief will give you just two minutes."

"Try again," said Trent pleasantly.

"What do you mean?" the other asked.

"I vaulted over this two-foot barrier and looked through the crack of the door. I saw you sit down, light a cigarette, read a letter through twice and then come back. You didn't even go into Mr. Hill's room. Listen. I'm here to see Mr. Hill now. Go back there at once."

"I will not," said the other flushing.

He saw the danger signal in the intruder's eyes. The secretary was overbearing but he was not courageous. For a moment he thought Trent was about to leap the barrier.

"I'll give you twenty seconds," said Trent. "After that I shall surprise you."

"There's a man outside," said the secretary, speaking to the cabinet officer, fifteen seconds later, "who says you've got to see him. I don't like the looks of him at all. If I were you, sir, I'd have him thrown out."

"Only the President can say I've 'got' to see him," said Hill frowning. "I'm much too busy today anyway. What was the name?"

"I didn't get it," the secretary lied.

"Can't you read?" snapped Mr. Hill. He took the card from the other's fingers. "Anthony Trent! Is he waiting?"

"Yes, he wouldn't take a hint." The secretary was sullen.

Something Else for Jury to Think About

The hysterical sympathy shown for murderers led Judge Morris Soper to say at a dinner in Baltimore:

"A young woman, in love with a poor young man, had killed her rich husband, and cut up his remains with a hatchet. As there could be no doubt about the woman's guilt, her lawyer tried to get her off by the use of the sentimental stop."

"My responsibility in this case is heart rending," he said to the jury in a tearful voice. "This lovely spring morning, as I motored in to the office, birds were singing in every tree, the green meadows were bright with wild flowers, the brooks gurgled, the fruit trees were in blossom, and I said to myself:

"My poor client, locked in a cold, gray cell, can see none of these beautiful things."

"Neither can her husband wot she cut up with a hatchet," yelled a man in the back of the court."—Detroit Free Press.

And the Bass Got Away

Jack Boyer hooked a bass that was all of 18 inches long at Mondota, Calif. He brought it to the surface, the line strained and the pole bent with the thrill that only a fisherman can understand. Then the fish wiggled from the hook, the taut line swished and the barbed hook landed firmly in Boyer's nose.

Liver Powder Appeals

Doctors may now prescribe a half-pound of liver a day and feel sure that the patient follows instructions. By a new process that has appeared in Europe a pound of beef and calf meat can be condensed into five tiny vials full of powder containing the vital curative elements without the actual tissue. Liver is valuable for restoring vitality to persons suffering from pernicious anaemia, but it has been difficult to get patients to eat enough of it regularly.
